Denim Upcycle Challenge Show

ENTRY FORM

Be imaginative and ECO friendly.

According to the UN, one pair of jeans takes 7,500 litres of water to make – a number that includes the water used to grow the cotton, make the denim and get the product shop-ready.

Frequently jeans are thrown away because the knees or bottom are worn through, but much of the water-expensive fabric has lots of useful life left. Can you make something useful or decorative from this good fabric?

Your item/items can be entered in the show and/or donated to the Sales Table. Additional upcycled denim items would be gratefully accepted for the Sales Table

Selkirk Parish Church is an ECO congregation.
